

British drugmaker GlaxoSmithKline (GSK) and three leading research institutions has formed a new European consortium to help further advance development of a candidate vaccine against Ebola.

read full article